Glajoljčki murali na Ekonomskome fakultetu u Osijeku

Glajoljica je znakovno pismo nadahnuto kršćanstvom u kojemu svaki znak istodobno predstavlja slovo, broj i simbol. Većina znanstvenika za tvorca glajoljice drži Konstantina Filozofa (827. – 869.). Začetak glajoljčkoga pisma veže se za 863. godinu u kojoj je Konstantin Filozof prolazio bizantskom Dalmacijom u pratnji svojega brata Metoda (815. – 885.). Sveta su braća kristijanizirala hrvatski puk te ga istodobno i opismenjivala. Naime, učenjem glajoljčkih pismena primao se kršćanski nauk, ali i obratno – umijećem čitanja i pisanja glajoljice, kršćanski su vjernici obnavljali i učvršćivali svoju vjeru. Glajoljica je u Hrvatskoj bila aktivno pismo sve do početka 20. stoljeća, a njezina živa uloga najduže se zadržala u bogoslužjima na narodnome jeziku i u liturgijskim knjigama ispisanim glajoljicom.

Otvorenjem Aule glajoljice, kao spomen-obilježja glajoljici, Ekonomski fakultet u Osijeku pridružio se čuvarima glajoljice koji aktivno skrbe o nematerijalnoj kulturnoj baštini.

Uz Aulu glajoljice, na Ekonomskome fakultetu u Osijeku postoji i Aula znanosti, posvećena Josipu Jurju Strossmayeru, Lavoslavu Ružički i Vladimiru Prelogu – trojici uglednih znanstvenika koji su svoju mladost proveli u Osijeku. Uz Josipa Jurja Strossmayera, Lavoslava Ružički i Vladimira Preloga, Aula znanosti posvećena je i osječkim učiteljima – Krunoslavu Babiću i Ivanu Kuriji. Oba su osječka učitelja utjecala na buduće nobelovce, koji su se upravo zbog srednjoškolskih sklonosti dobivenih od svojih učitelja, opredijelili za životne pozive znanstvenika.

Knjižnica

Knjižnica Ekonomskoga fakulteta u Osijeku osnovana je istodobno s osnutkom Ekonomskoga fakulteta i od tada je njegov sastavni dio. Danas djeluje u sastavu Fakulteta kao posebna organizacijska jedinica u funkciji obrazovanja i osposobljavanja studenata i kao informacijska potpora znanstvenoistraživačkom radu nastavnoga osoblja. Ukupan knjižnični fond bliži se broju od 40 000 svezaka knjižne građe i 125 naslova stručnih i znanstvenih časopisa i novina. Sadržaj knjižničnoga fonda obuhvaća sve udžbenike, priručnike, zbirku magistarskih i doktorskih radova te ostalu stručnu i znanstvenu literaturu koja je potrebna za studij ekonomskih znanosti. J. Strossmayera u Osijeku, diplomirani ekonomisti, gospodarstvenici i ostali građani.

Iako je broj studenata s invaliditetom na Ekonomskome fakultetu u Osijeku malen, u odnosu na ukupan broj upisanih studenata, Ekonomski fakultet u Osijeku čini značajan iskorak u pružanju potpore studentima s invaliditetom s ciljem njihove prilagodbe u akademskoj zajednici. Osobama s invaliditetom osiguran je nesmetan prilaz i ulaz u zgradu, kao i kretanje u gotovo cijeloj zgradi te su im učinjeni dostupnima i svi sadržaji na Fakultetu: od knjižnice, studentske referade, dvorana i sanitarnoga čvora. Na Ekonomskome fakultetu u Osijeku djeluje koordinator za studente s invaliditetom, koji je poveznica između studenata s invaliditetom s jedne strane i nastavnika, te stručnoga i administrativnoga osoblja Fakulteta s druge strane, a ujedno je i poveznica studenata sa sveučilišnim Uredom za studente s invaliditetom.

Imenovanjem koordinatora za studente s invaliditetom slijedi se primjer dobre prakse razvijenih europskih sveučilišta. Koordinator za studente s invaliditetom pruža informacije, ali i izravnu podršku, pomoć i prilagodbu studentima s invaliditetom pri rješavanju njihovih problema.

Glagolitic murals at the Faculty of Economics in Osijek

The Glagolitic is an alphabet of signs inspired by Christianity in which each character represents simultaneously a letter, a number and a symbol. Most scientist attribute the creation of the Glagolitic alphabet to Constantine the Philosopher (827 – 869). The inception of the Glagolitic alphabet is linked to year 863, when Constantine the Philosopher, accompanied by his brother Methodius (815 – 885), was passing through the Byzantine Dalmatia. The holy brothers were spreading Christianity and literacy among the Croatian people. Namely, by learning scriptures written in the Glagolitic alphabet, people accepted Christianity, and vice versa – the art of reading and writing in the Glagolitic alphabet renewed and strengthened the faith of Christian believers. The Glagolitic alphabet was actively used in Croatia until the early 20th century, and its living role was maintained the longest in worship services in the vernacular language and in liturgical books written in the Glagolitic alphabet.

With the opening of the Atrium of the Glagolitic Alphabet as a memorial to the Glagolitic alphabet, the Faculty of Economics in Osijek has joins the protectors of the Glagolitic alphabet in the safeguarding of intangible cultural heritage.

Besides the Atrium of the Glagolitic Alphabet, at the Faculty of Economics there is also the Atrium of the Sciences, which is dedicated to Josip Juraj Strossmayer, Lavoslav Ružička and Vladimir Prelog – three distinguished scientists who have spent their youth in Osijek. In addition to Josip Juraj Strossmayer, Lavoslav Ružička and Vladimir Prelog, Atrium of the Sciences is dedicated to Osijek teachers Krunoslav Babić and Ivan Kurija. These Osijek teachers have had a significant influence on future Nobel Prize winners, who have decided to pursue a career in science precisely because of preferences that were instilled by their high school teachers.
